PARIS, 1 PRAIRIAL, MAY 20.

Copy of a letter from Citizen Buonaparte General in Chief of the army of Italy, to the Executive Directory.

Head-Quarters, at Lody, 22 Floreal.

Citizen Directors,

I was of opinion that the croſſing of the river Po, would have been the boldeſt action of the campaign, as likewiſe the battle of Melleſimo, one of the moſt vigorous actions ever known: but I have now to relate the battle of Lody.

The 21ſt, at three o'clock in the morning, the head-quarters reached Caſal; at nine our vanguard encountered the enemy defending the approach of Lody. I immediately ordered all the cavalry to mount, and four pieces of cannon, which had juſt arrived, to be placed.

General Angereau's diviſion who had ſtopt at Borgetho and that of general Maſſina who had ſlept at Caſal marched immediately; meantime the van-guard overſet all the different poſts of the enemy, and took from them one piece of cannon. We entered Lody in purſuit of the enemy, who had already croſſed Adda, over the bridge. Beaulieu with all his army was ranged in order of battle; 33 pieces of cannon defended the paſſage of the bridge. I cauſed all my artillery to be placed in one battery. The cannonade, for ſeveral hours was very vigorous. As ſoon as the army arrived, they were ranged under a cloſe column, having at their head the 2d battalion of the Carabineers, and followed by all the battallions of grenadiers, beating the charge and exclaiming, Vive la Republique.

We ſoon reached the bridge which is one hundred fathoms in length; the enemy made on us a tremendous diſcharge, the head of our column ſeemed for a moment to heſitate, our ſituation was really critical. Generals Berthre, Meſſina, Cervano, d'Allemagne, the chiefs of the brigade Laiſne and the chief of the battalion, Dupet, all perceived it, and throwing themſelves at the head of the army decided the fate of the engagement.

Our formidable column overſet all that oppoſed it, all the enemy's artillery was carried away from them; Beaulieu's order of battle was broke, and in its flight ſpread every where terror and death. In an inſtant their whole army was ſcattered.

General Ruſea, Angereau, and Berrant, croſſed as ſoon as their diviſion arrived and completed the victory. The cavalry croſſed the Adda by a ford, which being very bad. delayed their march and by that means prevented their charging the enemy. The horſe of the enemy charged our troops but did not find it an eaſy matter to terrify them. Night coming on and the extreme fatigue of the troops, part of whom had already marched more than ten leagues on the ſame day, we were not allowed to purſue them any farther. The enemy loſt 20 pieces of cannon, two or three thouſand men either killed, wounded, or taken priſoners. Citizen Latour, aid-de-camp of General Maſſina, received ſeveral wounds with a broad ſword. I demand that this brave officer be made chief of a battalion. Citizen Marmont my aide-de-camp capt. had his coat ſifted with balls; the courage of this young officer is equal to his activity.

If I was to give the names of all the militaries who diſtinguiſhed themſelves on that glorious day, I ſhould name all the carabineers, and grenadiers of the vanguard, and almoſt all the officers of the Etat Major. But I muſt not forget to mention the brave Barthier, who was that day a canoneer, a horſeman and grenadier at the ſame time. Sugny, chief of brigade, who commanded the artillery, behaved gallantly.

Beaulieu flies with the remainder of his army: he is now croſſing over the States of Venice; ſeveral towns of which have ſhut their gates. Since the beginning of the campaign, tho' we had very warm actions, and the army of the republic were oftentimes forced to ſhew a great deal of boldneſs, none of them have yet been ſo terrible as the croſſing of the bridge of Lody. If we loſt but few men, it is owing to the haſte of the execution, and the ſudden effect which the maſs and tremendous fire of that intrepid column produced on the army of the enemy. I demand that citizen Mounier be confirmed adjutant-general, who ſerves in that capacity, although he is not included in this affair. I demand that citizen Rey, aid-de-camp of the brave Meſſina, and citizen Thoiret worthy adjutant of the third battalion of the grenadiers, be both made captains.

As ſoon as we ſhall be ſettled in a place, I will forward you a liſt of thoſe who have diſtinguiſhed themſelves on that glorious day.

The commiſſary of the government was always by me; the army is much indebted to his activity.

BUONAPARTE

Letter from the commiſſary of the Executive Directory with the armies of Italy and Alps to the Executive Directory.

"Lody, 25 Floreal, 4th year.

"CITIZENS,

"THE enemy being conquered at Lody, as I have informed you, had filed towards Mantua, by the road of Pizzigithone; they were purſued on the 23d, and finding it more prudent to fly, than to wait for us, they precipitated their retreat. Pizzighitone being, however, occupied by the enemy, General Bounaparte firſt cauſed it to be ſurrounded—then attacked—and this place was ſoon taken; the garriſon, conſiſting of about 400 men were made priſoners: we have alſo taken 4 pieces of cannon and a howitzer.

Cremona, is this moment occupied by our troops, on the other ſide our van-guard muſt be in Milan.

Our head quarters will be eſtabliſhed there to morrow: we there expect to refreſh ourſelves a few days, not ſo much on our own account, as on that of our troops, whom it can be eaſily ſuppoſed, are much fatigued by a month's continual marching and fighting.

MAY 26.

Department of the Seine.

It is in vain for any one to wiſh to conceal the truth: the ſituation of Paris appears to be calm, but the mind of the people are agitated. Idle characters never want cauſe to vo[ci]fer, and the labouring people murmur a thouſand circumſtances, which [a]re obſerved, evince that the plo[t] jacobins are not eradic[ated] ſcarcely poſtponed. MAY 27.

We are aſſured that there [is] moment an envoy in Paris f[rom] Pope come to entreat a peace.—It is not probable that in the ſecret articles which may have been annexed to the treaty with Spain, there is, as was reported, one intended to guarantee to his holineſs all his poſſeſſions in Italy. The Pope in that caſe was in but little danger. And if Spain had been ſo provident ſhe would have particularly guaranteed the poſſeſſions of the Duke of Parma, to whom we are nearer neighbours, and who ought to be of much more conſequence to him. The Pope will then in a ſhort time, like the other princes in Italy, be induced to throw himſelf on our diſcretion and generoſity.

The arch-duke Charles, wiſhing to conceal from his army the entire defeat of that of Italy, cauſed the bells to ring, and the Te Deum to be ſung on the other bank of the Rhine, as if to celebrate a victory, but artifice could not here long ſucceed, and it ſeems that he has been compelled to confeſs the reverſe: nevertheleſs, he ſtill endeavoured to palliate it by ſtating the loſs but at 4000 men.

FROM THE L'ECLAIR, MAY 29.

The report of the day, give us the hope of an approaching peace between the French Republic and Auſtria, and conſequently with all the continental powers.

A letter from Mayence of the 12th of May, informs us that the truce on the Rhine is prolonged two months, and that the arch-duke Charles has been ordered to Vienna, on the other ſide we are aſſured at Paris, that the citizen Deſorches, late miniſter of the Republic to Conſtantinople is empowered to negociate with the Emperor. One of our moſt eſteemed papers even goes ſo far as to ſay, that he has departed to Vienna for that purpoſe. This departure does not appear to us to be very likely. It is not in our preſent ſituation to be ſuppoſed, that the Directory would chooſe the capital of our principal enemy, for the ſeat of negociation; becauſe it would appear from this as if we ſued for peace. We may then believe that negociations are about to be recommenced, but not at Vienna, and that this place is not the deſt nation of Deſorches.

Lebois, the editor of the pretended Friend of the People [L'ami du Peuple] a paper printed in the Spirits of Marat's, is arreſted. Seals have been put on the preſs of the Journal des Hommes Libres, which daily defended the cauſe of Babœuf, Drouet and others. We muſt however believe that this act of rigour has not been exerciſed againſt them on account of their opinions, but as the acceſſaries of the conſpirators. Was it not ſo, it would be an attack on the liberty of the preſs, which we would be far from approving.

In the night of the 2d of this month, ſome movements were perceived in the Fauxbourg Saint Merceau, but a patrol of cavalry ſoon diſperſed the ſeditious. In general, the police of the night is well conducted, ſince Cochon is miniſter.

The conſpirators of Paris had prepared, in company with moſt of the adminiſtrations not elected by the people, ſeveral of the commandants, members of thepopular ſocieties, and revolutionary committees, the meaſures by which the horrible ſcenes, they intended for the capital were to be repeated in the departments.

VIENNA, MAY 2,

His Imperial Majeſty has frequently [h]ad conferences with General Clairfayt.

Theſe meaſures ſeem to announce [the] intention of engaging the Field [Mar]ſhal to reaſſume the command of [the] army of the Rhine; from the ad[van]tages which he gained at the cloſe [of] the laſt campaign, and the ill ſuc[ceſs] of the armies ſince his reſignation, [he] is conſidered as the only man capa[ble] of checking the progreſs of the ene[my] and conquering the low countries.

In the mean time he is at the head of the military operations. He receives all the diſpatches from the army of the Rhine, and after having made his remarks on them, they are forwarded to the Count de Loſſey, miniſter at war.

TURKEY.

Extract of a letter from Conſtantinople, April 20th.

Some time ſince, a French ſquadron captured in the Archipelago, two Pruſſian Veſſels; their ambaſſador has endeavoured in vain to obtain their reſtitution.

The French miniſter Verminac has however thought proper to inſtitute a commiſſion of French merchants to enquire into the merits of this caſe. They have declared the prizes to be legal—conſequently they will be ſold with their cargoes, eſpecially as the miniſters of the Sublime Porte have approved the judgment of the commiſſion. This conduct may prove very prejudicial to the Porte between her and Ruſſia.

Another inſtance of the great partiality of the Porte in favour of Verminac is evinced by the following circumſtance:

The French Miniſter cauſed a German, who was under the protection of the Imperial Internuncio, to be arreſted by his own Janiſſaries, and conducted from the palace of the ambaſſador to the Hotel of France.

It was with the greateſt difficulty that the Baron de Herbert procured the releaſe of this individual: notwithſtanding all the remonſtrances he made to the Porte, he could obtain no ſatisfaction for this glaring infringement on his privileges.

July 28.

Alexandria, Auguſt 2.

Extract from a communication in the Norfolk Herald of July 8.

There are well grounded reaſons for expecting that the Preſident of the United States will reſign at the expiration of the term for which he was elected, that is in March next, and that his fellow citizens will be informed of his determination by an addreſs in the courſe of a few weeks.—It is expected that he will be ſolicited to continue longer in office, but ſurely if the Preſident announces his determination to reſign, nothing could be more indelicate, or (it is preſumed) more offenſive to the feelings of the Preſident, than to requeſt his continuance in office.

If it is the wiſh of that great man to retire from office, may the bleſſings of his fellow citizens follow him, they will not ceaſe to venerate his virtues, tho' he may ceaſe to ſerve them.

Who the ſucceſſor of Waſhington may be, it is uncertain—different opinions and wiſhes will direct differently; ſuch is the nature of a government like ours, and to ſuppoſe that the office can only be filled by but one man, is a a libel on the conſtitution—it is a libel on all republican governments. Such an opinion ſhould be treated as a degree of folly approximating to inſanity, becauſe it can only be ſupported by a belief that one man will live for ever.

[Williamſburg.]

We hear that the Rev. and learned Preſident of Harvard College, is elected an Honorary Member of the Royal academy at Gottingen!!!

The facetious Peter Pindar ſpeaks highly of this German College, which by a wondrous ſympathy, has diſcovered the profound erudition of our learned Preſident, and incorporated it with her own ponderous and ſolid maſs of learning. Peter thus apoſtrophizeth the Dutch Seminary.

'O! attic Gottinger to thee I bow,
"Of Learning thou moſt wonderful milch cow."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Newburyport, dated July 21.

"Yeſterday captain Seward arrived here in 9 days from Bermuda, who informs that the buſineſs of privateering is almoſt over—only three cruiſers were out, and they were gone for Halifax. The inhabitants were determined that no American property ſhould be ſold, as they were afraid their private eſtates would be attached for indemnification. A cargo belonging to this town, now there, was prevented from being ſold."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Niagara, to his Correſpondent int his City, dated the 1ſt inſt.

"Two months ago, this place, the livelieſt, the moſt thronged in Upper Canada, garriſoned by three hundred and ſixty men, is reduced to the moſt lonely in all the Province, not a gun to be ſeen on all the works, nor a particle of any thing left—all is gone. Fifty men under the command of capt. Sheaffe, and two Subaltern Officers, of the 5th regiment, only left to deliver up the Fort to the Americans—It is really like a deſert, but it is to be hoped will not long be ſo. We hear the American troops are for certain on their march, and report ſays, they are very near Buffaloe-creek."

From Knoxville, July 4.

We are informed, by a gentleman from Kentucky, that a party of men, under the command of Captain Ferdinand Leigh Claiborne, lately marched from the head quarters of Major General Wayne, to take poſſeſſion of Fort Detroit, which poſt was, by the treaty with Britain, to be evacuated the firſt of June laſt.

NEWBURYPORT, JULY 23.

IMPORTANT AND TRUE.

Laſt Wedneſday Captain Seward arrived here, nine days from Bermuda, bringing information that the inhabitants of that place were expecting attachments from the court of Great Britain, on their private eſtates, to refund the property belonging to American citizens, which had been illegally taken, and unlawfully condemned by their courts of vice-admiralty. They had ſtopped the ſales of many cargoes lately captured, one of which was that of the Caroline, of this port. Thoſe articles that were ſold were prohibited exportation by a very heavy duty.

CONFIRMATION.

Thurſday captain Gunniſon arrived, 19 days from Gaudaloupe. July 9, lat. 27, boarded by a Bermudian privateer, papers examined, diſmiſſed, and informed that American property in future would not be ſtopped, as they were not allowed to libel it at Bermuda.

BOSTON, JULY 23.

AGREEABLE INTELLIGENCE.

From Alicant, May 10, 1796.

The cloud which lately obſcured the negotiations between the United States and Algiers, is entirely diſſipated: A letter from one of the firſt houſes in Alicant, ſays; "Our ſubſequent letter will adviſe you, of the final ſettlement between the United States and the Regency of Algiers. All veſſels for here are now ſafe."

PHILADELPHIA, JULY 28.

We were pleaſed to obſerve, by a proclamation of Citizen Roume, proviſional agent at St. Domingo, which appeared in the Courier Francois of the 27th inſtant, an inſtance of magnanimity and moderation.—On hearing at Port-de-Paix of the arrival of an agent from the French Republic, five poor deluded Frenchmen ſerving under the Britiſh banners, in the corps of the Emigrant Montalembert, immediately deſerted, went to join the republicans, and throw themſelves upon the mercy of the Agent of the Republic. Having borne arms againſt their country, theſe men were liable to ſuffer immediate death, but the agent conſidering them as miſled by their ignorance of the ſituation of Europe, and the impoſitions of the Britiſh and Emigrants, determined not to execute the law upon them, but to admit them again into the Republic, not as citizens, but to admit them upon the ſame terms as Engliſhmen who are deſirous of becoming French citizens, viz. a miſſion to live on the French ter under the protection of the Fren vernment, but not to be admi the rights of citizenſhip, until dence of ſeven years has proved worthy of that character.—How ble does juſtice appear when tem with mercy!

Capt. Pierce of the ſchooner Deli from Porto Rico, informs that brig Fame capt. Jordan of Portlan which was captured on the 25th Ma by the Favorite Britiſh ſloop of war and ſent for Grenada, where, after her arrival, the mate and crew roſe, cut her out of the harbor at night, and proceeded to ſea. Shortly after fell in with the French privateer ſchooner Flying Fiſh, by which ſhe was again made a prize of, in conſequence of her having no papers on board. She was daily expected to arrive at Porto Rico, but had not before capt. Pierce left that port. Capt. Jordan arrived here on the 7th July, in the Alexander from Montſerrat.

The building of the United States Frigate now conſtructing in Southwark, goes on rapidly. Some progreſs has already been made in planking her.

NEW-YORK, JULY 22.

On Saturday laſt arrived at New-London, the French privateer ſchooner Revenge, of Hiſpaniola, commanded by Citizen Decuja, mounting 8 guns with her prize, the brig George from St. John's Newfoundland, bound to New-York, in ballaſt. Finding that in conformity to the 25th article of the Britiſh Treaty with this country, they could not ſell their prize, the privateer and prize left that port: The privateer returned the following day, and is diſmantled, having received much injury during her cruize. The brig it is ſuppoſed was ranſomed.

THE APPARITION.

Twas night, gloomy night, when all nature was huſhed in calm repoſe, when no ſound was heard ſave that of the chirping cricket; as I lay muſing in my bed, my thoughts aſſailed with gloomy apprehenſions, and moping Somnus guarded the bed of numberleſs mortals, but mine alone he had forſaken: methought I had loſt entirely his kind patronage, and in the courſe of half an hour had begged his aſſiſtance three times; when dreadful to relate the door turned upon its creeking hinge, my heart turned in my body, and my body turned in my bed! I ſaid nothing, but heard the dreadful apparition approach towards me; my fancy painted his griſly beard and golden eye-balls ſhining againſt the wall with terror. It came on my bed which I had already crept to the foot of; it pulled the clothes, I pronounced a ſmall ejaculation, and prepared calmly to meet my fate. A long ſilence enſued—then a ſhrill voice—another pauſe—and at laſt had the fortitude to put out my head; when, to my eternal confuſion, mortification, and diſgrace, I ſaw—Poor puſſey Cat.

ANECDOTE.

When General Lincoln went to make peace with the Creek Indians, one of the chiefs aſked him to ſit down on a log. It was not long before he was deſired to move, and in a few moments to proceed, and the requeſt was repeated, till he found himſelf at the end of the log. The requeſt was then renewed; to which he made anſwer, he could move no further, "Juſt ſo it was with us," anſwered the tawny chief, "you have moved us back to the ſea, and now aſk us to go further."

TO THE MEMORY OF MR. TITUS TRIPLETT.

MR. PRICE,

THE following tribute to departed worth may probably call forth some pen of more capability than that of AMICUS.

Why tolls that Bell? — and whence this mournful gloom?
On whom has Death now seal'd its awful doom?
What smiling Cherub prematurely flies,
Or worn-out mortal thus lamented dies?

Nor age nor infancy is here deplor'd,
On blooming Manhood friendship's tear is pour'd,
Young TRIPLETT, handsome, sociable, and kind,
Of pleasing manner and ingenuous mind,
For ever's gone!—to bliss eternal borne,
From friends, from weeping relatives he's torn;
Yet wherefore sad?—why selfishly bemoan
One call'd from us by HIM WHO CLAIMS HIS OWN.
Divested now of Earth's encumb'ring mould,
His spirit's wrapt in Saints' and Angels' fold.
Then let's exult, or if the gushing tear
Will force its way from us weak mortals here,
Be this idea faithfully impress,
The leading wish of each survivor's breast,
To fondly dwell on NEVER ENDING BLISS,
That when we seek a better world than this,
Each mourner breathes in sympathetic strain,
We lov'd his Life, and weep his Death in vain.
